ARNOLD AND HIS ACCUSERS.

Certain of our contemporaries and some of our citizens who draw their inspiration from them are severely criticising and condemning the action of Mr. Orson P. Arnold for the part he took in the recent effort of President George Q. Cannon to deprive Marshal Ireland of the pleasure of paying out the $300 which the government had offered for the arrest of Mr. Cannon. What has Mr. Arnold done that any true man would not have undertaken for a friend, especially when that friend was as dear to him as was George Q. Cannon to the abused gentleman? Mr. Arnold tried to save his friend from trouble and persecution; he broke no law, he violated no trust. Mr. Cannon was not under arrest, and in assisting him to get out of the country Mr. Arnold did not come in collision with the sacred person of one of those pure and holy creatures, the deputy marshals. If Mr. Cannon had been a prisoner and Mr. Arnold had aided him to escape, the case would have been entirely different, but as the gentleman did not only what one friend would do for another, what is being done every day in the year in every State in the Union, and what any of the men who are now abusing him for doing would do to-morrow for people for whom they do not entertain half the respect or love that Orson Arnold holds for George Q. Cannon, the offense of Mr. Arnold amounts to no offense whatever. As to the attempted bribery of the Nevada sheriff, we have only the word of the gentleman himself. It may be true as stated or it may be false. Unless the average Nevada officer has been most shamelessly lied about, the probabilities are that the bribery story was invented to make the Cannon matter more sensational. The reputation of too many officials of the sagebrush State is such that the stranger would be justified in attempting to purchase one of them; and we do not believe many men would think it necessary to offer $1,000 for undoing what the officer was to get only $500 for doing. If Mr. Arnold really did try to bribe the sheriff and failed, the latter should thank Arnold for giving a Nevada officer an opportunity for saying that at least one man in the State could not be bought—for $1,000. To be able to say this much should compensate for the loss of the extra $300. Meanwhile, the public will accept the sheriff's story of his probity when it has been corroborated, and not before. As to Mr. Arnold's conduct in trying to aid his hunted and persecuted friend, most people will think the better of him for doing it, inasmuch as he broke no law and violated no obligation in doing what he did.

RATE CUTTING.

For some days past the managers of transcontinental railways have been trying to agree upon a pooling arrangement, but have failed. The result is a cut in passenger rates of about 35 per cent. on the old prices charged for through tickets. The Northern Pacific has not yet announced a reduction, but will undoubtedly do so in the course of a day or two, being compelled to make the cut for self-protection and in order to get any share of the business. The cut rates, so far, are not below the price at which it is profitable to carry passengers; the roads will still make money, though in all probability the compact having been broken in the race for business there will soon be further cuts, and doubtless some disaster to the companies. The public is not much affected in a commercial way by a cut in passenger rates. The matter of $25 or $30 expense counts for little with the transcontinental traveler who goes for either business or pleasure. Travel will not be materially increased or decreased whatever may be the price for through tickets that is at all likely to be reached.

A change in freight rates, however, will affect the public very much for good or evil. It is therefore with anxiety that the action of the roads for the next few days will be watched. Salt Lake has not yet recovered from the war of rates two or three years ago; the bad effects are still felt by the mercantile portion of the community; that was crowded some merchants who were weak and wanting in wisdom, and we doubt if it helped a single dealer. Another such war would not be attended by anything like such bad results, for the merchants have learned wisdom by experience. Yet any considerable drop in freight rates would be injurious, and we hope there will be no such cut. Railroads owe it to their patrons to protect them against themselves and each other. As the freight on many articles of merchandise amounts to a considerable portion of the cost of the goods when ready for sale to the consumer, the railroad has no right to change the rates for carriage without giving ample notice to dealers that the latter may place themselves in a position to derive the benefits from the change, and all may be placed on an equality. Merchandising is not now as it used to be in this city. There was a time when during a portion of the year stocks were full, and then during another part of the year, shelves and warehouses were comparatively empty. Now, when goods are coming every day, the merchant is compelled to keep "stocked up" all the time. He cannot say as formerly, that he is out of this or that article and cannot obtain a new supply for months hence, but must carry a full stock both as to variety and quantity all the time. Hence it is that a cut in freight rates may amount to thousands of dollars to him, in depreciating the retail value of his goods on hand.

There is nobody here who will ever be found raising his voice against a reduction of both passenger and freight charges; the rates have been exorbitant and should come down, but the reduction without proper notice will work vastly more harm than good. The railroads should think of this, and protect those who support them.

MARSHAL IRELAND has not yet got the courage to tell upon whose requisition he surrendered his manhood and his office to the military the other day. Is he afraid his subjugation might be traced to an editorial sanctum?

CLEVELAND AND THE SENATE

The Senate, under the leadership of the wily Edmunds, is threatening to make matters unpleasant, to say the least, for Mr. Cleveland; and not only this, but it is placing a good many of the President's appointees on the apportionment. It is noticeable that while Democrats and Democratic newspapers feel that they must defend the position of the President in his assumption of the right to remove certain classes of officers without giving reasons therefor, very little sympathy is felt for the Executive. While Republicans are chuckling with delight there is a very general feeling among Democrats that he has brought the annoyance upon himself, and is deserving of the trouble that is coming upon him. When Cleveland was elected Republicans all expected to surrender the offices and Democrats confidently expected to take them. This had always been the rule, and there was the best of reasons for not departing from it at this time. "Turn the rascals out" had been the cry of the people; the cry was not a meaningless shout. The "rascals" were in and the demand was that they should go out. They looked to be bounced, and waited anxiously for the 4th of March, expecting to feel the executive boot. Had Cleveland signaled his entrance to his office by carrying out the wishes of the majority and turning the rascals out as fast as he could sign commissions for the men who had been victorious in the political contest, he would have experienced no trouble from the Senate, for his right to remove at will as his predecessors had done, would not have been questioned, while the country would have stood by him with firmness. He invited the contest which has now come upon him, and showed the Senate how to annoy and defy him.

The struggle which has just begun must necessarily prove detrimental to the public service. The Senate can reject Mr. Cleveland's nominations, but it cannot reinstate the old incumbents of the offices; the President can keep on nominating and the Senate continue to reject, Cleveland's appointees being in all the time; but the public service will suffer from the frequent changes, and the uncertainty of the incumbent as to his official tenure.

It is an arrogant and revengeful course on the part of the Senate, but Cleveland deserves nothing better than what he is getting.

MARSHAL IRELAND is getting courage fast. Early in the week he felt safe only when surrounded by a company of soldiers, armed with rifles and bayonets; now he dare walk the streets unaccompanied by more than one deputy.

A NUMBER of bills—we refer to measures passed by the Legislative Assembly and not grocers' statements—have been sent to the Governor for his action thereon. As several of these reached His Excellency some time ago, and have not yet been returned, it is presumed that Murray is hunting for "reasons" upon which to base objections to their approval. The Governor has made up his mind that it shall not be said that the statutes of the Territory have been enlarged as a result of the present session of the Assembly. If he does nothing else than devise "reasons" for vetoes, Murray is a man of resource, in some directions, and he will not fail in this matter while he can induce an editor or a lawyer to write a veto message for him.

To see the Great Father

DENVER, February 19.—A Durango special to the Republican: C. F. Stall-steamer, of the Southern Ute Agency, in company with Interpreter Archuletta, Chief Ignacio of the Utes, Buckskin Charlie, chief of the Winnemuccas, and several other chiefs, started for Washington this morning. The Utes are desirous of selling their reservation to the Southern Colorado government and moving from the State and are going to Washington on order of the Interior Department to see if a satisfactory treaty can be made.

No Word of the "Amethyst."

SAN FRANCISCO, February 19.—The United States revenue cutter Richard Rush, which left here January 22d, for the Behring Sea, in search of the missing whaler Amethyst and crew of forty men, arrived to night, and reports having found no trace of the missing vessel or crew. The cruise was uneventful. The weather was intensely cold, but no suffering occurred among the crew of the Rush.

Hog Cholera.

LONDON, Ontario, 19.—Hog cholera is prevailing in Essex County and a large number of hogs have died. The farmers kept the fact a secret until the disease spread over a large area. It is reported that a large number of hogs are dying in Oxford County.

Watterson's Condition.

LOUISVILLE, February 19.—Mr. Watterson continued better all during the day. His friends and nurse feel that another and perhaps last crisis is passed and hope for his speedy recovery. The physicians are hardly as sanguine, but are hopeful of his ultimate and complete recovery.

"Lucky" Must Pay It.

DUJARDIN'S LIFE ESSENCE

This Wonder of Modern Chemistry is pronounced to be unequalled by any other of replenishing the vitality of the body, by supplying all the essential elements of the Blood, Brain and Nerve Substance, and for developing all the various Functions of the System to the highest degree. It acts as a specific, curing all those of the present age, for the speedy and permanent cure of all ailments of the Nervous and Blood Systems, Nervous Prostration, General Debility, Mental and Physical Depression, Incapacity for Study or Business, Noises in the Head and ears, Loss of Energy and Appetite. Being a natural Restorative, its energizing effects are not followed by corresponding reaction but are Permanent, and are frequently shown, from the first day of its administration, by a remarkable Increase of the Nervous Power, with a feeling of Vigor, Strength and Comfort to which the patient has long been unaccustomed. The nervous symptoms disappear, as well as the Functional Derangement. The face becomes calm and refreshing. At the same time the patient gains flesh, the features presenting a striking improvement; the face becomes fuller, the lips red, the eyes brighter, the skin clear and healthy. The hair of the head and beard grow and acquire strength, as also the nails, showing the importance of the action of the medicine on the organs of nutrition. It gives back to the human structure, in a suitable form, the Lively, Animating element of life which has been wasted, and exerts an important influence directly on the Brain, Spinal Marrow, and Nervous System, of a Nutritive, Tonic and Invigorating character, thereby checking all wasting of the Vital Fluid and the more Exhausting Processes of Life, maintaining that buoyant Energy of the Brain and Muscular System which renders the Mind Cheerful, Happy, Brilliant and Energetic; entirely overcoming that dull, inactive and sluggish disposition which many persons experience in all their action. Price, $1.50 per bottle.
